

JAIME TJAHAJA

ELECTRONIC PRESS KIT • 2026

Oakland, CA-Based Songwriter & Multi- Instrumentalist

Indie-Folk Rock > Americana > Singer-
Songwriter

Born in Indonesia and raised in Northern California, Jaime Tjahaja writes through a third-culture lens—an artist moving between hemispheres of influence, channeling a deeply personal instinct into songs that speak directly to the great American sonic landscape.

His songwriting pairs intimate lyricism with cinematic imagery: vintage guitar tones, graceful rhythms, and lyrical precision meeting in joyful harmony. His music carries faint echoes of Paul Simon's melodic grace and Jackson Browne's emotional presence, while Dylan's mercurial spirit lingers at the edges of influence without ever defining the work. Instead, Tjahaja offers a fresh take on the evolving American songbook: deeply rooted, fully present in the moment, and unmistakably his own.

SOUNDS LIKE

Paul Simon's melodic sensibility and Bon Iver's imaginative lyricism, the raw, mercurial feeling of Dylan's Blonde on Blonde era, filtered through the polished songcraft of Mark Knopfler's post-Dire Straits work.
